What promises to be the biggest week of the exposition so far was inaugurated yesterday by the best Sunday crowd that has yet been on the grounds. The 25-cent rate and the magnificent weather brought the people out in unusual numbers and the grounds presented as lively a scene as on an ordinary week day. For the first three hours of the afternoon the travel towards the grounds was limited only by the capacity of the street cars and later the evening attendance swelled the crowd to even more satisfactory proportions. It was a thorquighly delightful day for exposition visiting and the afternoon and evening were occupied by an almost continuous program of excellent band music that afforded entertainment to those who found the sun too vigorous for walking about the grounds. The Mexican band played to big audiences at each of its concerts and the Omaha Concert band gave Auditorium concerts at 1 and 5 o'clock, which were also liberally patroulzed. Special Agent McGarvie returned yester day from Chicago with the most satisfactory assurances that Chicago day, which occurs October 1, will be one of the marked successes of the exposition. The city will send one of the most representative crowds that has ever gone out of Chicago and it now appears that the local peace celebration will have no serious effect on the excursions to Omaha. Mr. McGarvie says that there is no doubt that from 5,000 to 10,000 people will come from Chicago alone and these will include the most prominent business Union League club has chartered a special fering. train on the Northwestern ratiroad and enough members have already secured berths to fill five cars. Another Turn in the Case of the Woman's Body Found in Connectiont.

MIDDLEBORO, Conn., Sept. 18.-After much telephoning and telegraphing a mem ber of the Bridgeport police gained posses sion of the woman's dismembered body found in Yellow Mill pond and brought here by Frank W. Perkins, who had mistakenly identified it as that of his daughter Grace. The town was scarcely awake this morning when Detective George Arnold of the Bridge port police arrived. The first thing he did was to call on Undertaker Williams, who brought the remains of the unknown woman from Taunton last night, with the request that they be delivered to him. Mr. Williams informed the detective that he intended to clated Press Archbishop Dozal of the Philiphold them until he received definite orders from the coroner at Bridgeport to give them up, supplemented by a sworn statement from Mr. Perkins that the fragments of the body in the box were not those of his daughter. At noon a telegram was received from the coroner addressed to Undertaker Williams and containing an order to give up the body to Arnold.

Mr. Perkins was induced to sign the statement demanded by the undertaker. With the two documents Arnold again presented himself at the undertaker's and the body, which was in an advanced state of nposition, was delivered to him.

Miss Perkins appears unconcerned regarding the whole affair and looks on it all as a joke. She kept indoors all day and although the house was well surrounded by curious people, few caught even a glimpse of her. The Bournes are even closer mouthed than the Perkins family, although denying emphatically that the two are married, family has intimated that at the proper time a statement will be made.

"I carnestly hope the islands will not remain Spanish, because the rebels are now so strong that such a course would inevitably cause appalling bloodshed. The reconquest of the natives is impossible until after years of the most cruel warfare."

He also expressed the hope that the islands would not become absolutely independent, because it was certain that dissensions would occur which would result in incessant strife and a lapse into barbarism and the natural indolence of the tropical race. The only hope, the archbishop declared, was that a strong western power would intervene now. Delay was dangerous because the people are intoxicated, vainglorious and restless. He said it was undeniable that the religious orders must go, because the whole people had determined to abolish them now that they were able to render their retention impossible. laid the chief blame upon the Dominicans, Augustins and Franciscan recletans, the richest orders, and next upon the Benedicines and Capuchins, which are of less im portance, Jesuits, Archbishop Dozal says, are comparatively blameless.

ALARMED ABOUT VESUVIUS

Population of Naples Apprehensive that the Volcano Will Make Serious Trouble.

NAPLES, Sept. 18 .- A state of gloomy apprehension prevails among the population regarding the eruption of Vesuvius, which is hourly becoming more active and menacing. Streams of lava are spreading in every direction. Knows that Many of the Documents Making Up the Famous Dreyfus Dossier to Have Been Forgeries.

(Copyright, 1898, by Press Publishing Co.) LONDON, Sept. 18 .- (New York World Cablegram - Special Telegram.) - Major Esterhazy has been safely staying in London, having shaved off his moustache as his only attempt at disguise. This has proved satisfactory for the purpose, as he has remained undiscovered by private detectives, both English and French, who have been hunting him in the Dreyfus case. He is about to make a full confession of his sbare in the Dreyfus plot and as he admits he cannot return to France, it is evident his share would involve criminal consequences to him. He has authorized the following statement: "There is no longer any justice for me in my own country and the time has now arrived to make a full disclosure of the part I played in the affairs of Dreyfus. I intend to make this disclosure in the interest of truth, regardless of its result to Dreyfus personally. I can no longer allow myself to be made a scapegoat. The responsibility must be fairly distributed. Everything I did was in blind, unquestioned obedience to a superior officer. I am a professional soldier. I know no law but the law of absolute obedience to my superior. If I were brother I should do so without the slightest

Abandoned by His Chiefs.

"I have now only my own honor to consider, the military chiefs have abandoned me. I owe them no further allegiance. You ask me was I a spy, was I a secret agent employed by the French military staff to watch attaches of foreign powers. I answer that I acted loyally under orders. My justification shall be made plain at the proper time, which is now very near at hand. "You want to know whether my disclosures will clear Dreyfus. I answer Dreyfus dossier I know that many are missioners expect to see the American flag | forged and I am prepared to show by whom and under what circumstances these forgories were committed. Whether Dreyfus is the innocent man his champions suppose remains to be seen and can be safely left to the public to judge when it is in possession of the whole facts."

Dreyfus in South America. George R. Sims, playwright and journalist, propounds a novel theory about Dreyfus. He has long maintained that Dreyfus was rescued two years ago from Devil's Island through the instrumentality of a French syndicate which exists to secure the liberation of prisoners in penal settlements who can pay heavily for freedom. Sims now says: "The real difficulty with the French government with regard to Dreyfus is to find him. Two years ago he was rescued from Devil's Island and a substitute left in his mittee consists of the following: President | place. The government officials are terrified at the outcry which would be raised if France accepted the substitute. Dreyfus himself went to South America, where he is living under an assumed name. His wife of course dares not quit France to join him. That would mean a plot for his rearrest or assassination. Dreyfus does not yet feel sufficient confidence in the authorities and French people to put his head in the lion's den. If Dreyfus ever returns to take a new trial you may be sure his acquittal will have been absolutely guaranteed beforehand."

Paris Outwardly Quiet.

PARIS, Sept. 18 .- (New York World Cablegram-Special Telegram.)-Jules Perider, a leading member of the French bar, explains as follows the present legal position of the Dreyfus case: "Judicially the ministerial decision to remit the case to an examining commission of three determines nothing except a resifting of the Dreyfus dossler by the light of recent events. The commission's decision will settle revision or not. The decision is important politically as confirming and revealing the sentiment in the country in favor of revision."

Paris is quiet outwardly. There seems to be a sense of relief that revision has been decided upon, but there is a great commotion among the chiefs of the army and they have undoubtedly the will to attempt revision at the eleventh hour by a military coup d' etat. Cavaignae, who has thrown in his lot unreservedly with the army, is pointed to as possible dictator, but public sentiment is the most effective bar to such designs. It has veered round completely in favor of revision, the justice of which is now recognized except by a couple of anti-Dreyfus organs. Esterhazy's promised confession is awaited with the keenest curiosity, though no one will believe a word he says unless supported by testimony.

Considered in Council. PARIS, Sept. 18 .- At the opening of the council of ministers today M. Sarrien, minister of justice, stated his views of the case at considerable length, expressing the conviction that a revision was necessary for the peace of the country and expedient on the ground that many of the decuments on the dossier appeared to be of doubtful authenticity and, above all, that Colonel Henry's admission of forgery threw suspicion on all
